

International applicants who apply for Chinese-taught graduate programs must provide certificates to prove their Chinese language proficiency meets the minimum requirements for admissions, which are listed as below:

Applicants for Chinese-taught programs shall have HSK certificate of level 5 (180 points) or above. The certificate should be within its validity period.

Applicants who have earned a degree from accredited college or university whose language of instruction was Chinese, must provide Certificate of Instruction in Chinese issued by previous institution. Applicants who provide this document are exempt from providing HSK Certificate.

Applicants who have completed secondary education in middle and senior high schools whose language of instruction was Chinese, must provide Certificate of Instruction in Chinese issued by schools. Applicants who provide these documents are exempt from providing HSK Certificate.

Applicants whose native language is not English must provide English Language Test Result within validity period Certificate of Instruction in English issued by previous institutions or other proof which can reflect the applicants' English proficiency.

	320
	550
	6.5
	90
	120
	180
	180
	70% score	For Master's Degree Program applicants.
	70% score	For Doctoral Degree Program applicants.

Applicants who have earned a degree from accredited college or university whose language of instruction was English, must provide Certificate of Instruction in English issued by previous institution.

Applicants who apply for exemption from submitting language test scores must upload relevant documents to the _____ of ZJU Online Application System.